Rebecca Battleson Crowned Miss Lemon Grove 1989

Carla Custodio chosen 1st Runner-up

Karin Stevenson named 2nd Runner-up

Rebecca Battleson, 22, was selected as Miss Lemon Grove on Saturday, March 11, 1989, at the conclusion of the annual pageant held in the auditorium of Lemon Grove Middle School.

Becki has competed for the crown in prior pageants, and she is thrilled, she said, to have won this year.

As the new Miss Lemon Grove, Becki will be spotlighted at many local events, and she will serve as Lemon Grove's representative in parades and events outside of the City as well.

A student at San Diego State University, Becki plans a career as a corporate lawyer.

The contest's first runner-up is Carla Maria Custodio, 18. Karin Diane Stevenson, 18, was selected as second runner-up.

Pageant judges were Rod Bumstein, of the San Diego Chargers, Ric Simmons of Fitness Advantage, and Amorita Treganza, a Lemon Grove optometrist, and the community's first Miss Lemon Grove in 1928.

The Miss Lemon Grove Pageant is executed each year by a Committee of the Lemon Grove Chamber of Commerce. Additional sponsors for the 1989 crowning were the Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs of Lemon Grove, and the City of Lemon Grove. Numerous donations of materials, gifts, products and services were contributed by local businesses and individuals.

The pageant was directed by Karen Warrant, committee chairperson, with the assistance of Stacia Groen, Lou Ann Holaday, Joyce Lazok, Cookie Ringhand, Diane Rose, and Miss Lemon Grove 1988, Cassandra Roberts.

The audience numbered more than 200, Warrant said. And that this year's pageant had drawn more observers than in the past several years.

Becki will compete, as one of 35 finalists in the Fairest of the Fair contest on Friday, May 26. The young woman who wins that crown will serve as the official hostess of the Del Mar Fair, which is sponsored annually by the 22nd District Agricultural Assn. The fair is set for June 16 through July 4.

Lemon Grove Council OK's $183,865 purchase of new fire engine

Acquisition of a new fire engine for $183,865 was approved by the Lemon Grove City Council at its March 6 meeting. Council heard Fire Chief Bill Wright describe the pumper which will be made in Appleton, Wisconsin, by Pierce Manufacturing, Inc.

The new equipment will pump 1,500 gallons of water per minute as opposed to 1,000 gallons by the pumper it replaces—a 29-year-old one manufactured by Pete Pirsch Co.

The Pierce equipment will permit personnel to ride inside the 4-door cab. The old machine had some of the personnel standing in the open. "It's a safety hazard that had worried us," Chief Wright said. When the new engine arrives, the old engine will be put on standby.

The Fire Department has a 1970 Crown Telesquirt with a 50 ft. hose extension and has a 1,500 gallon per minute pump rate.

"We will have 3 vehicles which are capable of producing 1,500 gallons a minute. It gives us a very comfortable feeling. It gives the department 3 pieces of equipment 10 years apart. We hope to get a new rig every 10 years," Wright continued.

The invitations to bid on the machine were distributed to 6 firms. 3 firms said they did not wish to bid on the equipment at this time. 2 firms did not respond. The single bid was accepted, and delivery will occur in 12 months.

$3,000 in delivery costs will be saved by department men driving the pumper from the factory to Lemon Grove. An additional $3,000 was saved when the invitation to view the factory pumper pre-painting was rejected. Approximately $12,000 in sales tax must be added.

The next council meeting is March 20.

Citizens' complaints lead to arrest

Citizens' complaints of a neighbor possibly conducting an illegal auto repair business at his home, led to the discovery last week of three stolen vehicles. A pair of utility trailers filled with auto body parts, some of which have also been identified as belonging to stolen vehicles was also found. It's an operation commonly referred to as a "Chop Shop," according to Detective Bill Walkup of the Lemon Grove Sheriff's Department.

Jerry Ross, 31, was arrested at his home at 7380 Central Ave., by Walkup and Sheriff's Deputy, Linda Jackson, Tuesday, March 7. Ross was charged with nine felony counts for possession of stolen property and auto theft.

Responding to an alert by concerned residents, Sgt. Rusty Burkett and Larry Muir, city code enforcement officer, visited the residence on Central Ave. There they discovered several vehicles, two of which are Porsches, one in the early stages of being stripped of parts and the others intact, according to a report. Burkett, suspicion aroused, radioed for a make on the vehicles' license plates, and their stolen status was confirmed. Burkett then requested assistance.

Walkup estimates that about $100,000 in stolen property was recovered on the premises.

"Unfortunately most of it in pieces..., of peoples' former pride and joy," he said, adding that auto thefts have increased dramatically; to epidemic proportions.

Walkup stated that officers also recovered an orange Mazda RX7—probably a 1979 model—for which he has not yet been able to identify the status, nor ownership.

Ross remains in custody on $25,000 bail, and the investigation will continue, Walkup said.

SPCA halts Easter pet adoptions

To prevent short-term adoptions during the Easter season, the San Diego Humane Society and S.P.C.A. will prohibit adoption of rabbits, guinea pigs, ducks, and chickens from now through April 2, Executive Director Fred Lee announced.

"Too often in the past, we've had people turn in these types of pets to our shelter after adopting them at Easter. The holiday was over, and the thrill was gone," Chief Lee explained.

Many of the pets who were brought to the shelter had actually been neglected, Lee pointed out, because the adopters had not properly cared for them while they had them.

"The adopters weren't knowledgeable about the nutritional requirements of their 'Easter pets' or any grooming care they needed," said Lee.

Careful consideration should be given toward any pet adoption to ensure a lasting relationship, Lee advised. Additionally, a new pet will adjust more easily in its new environment when it's adopted at a time when a family's following their normal daily schedules, instead of being adopted during a holiday, when people's schedules are more erratic.

Since 1880, the San Diego Humane Society & S.P.C.A. has been serving the animals and people throughout San Diego County with pet adoptions, animal cruelty investigations, humane education presentations for school children, pet-assisted therapy visits, and emergency animal rescues. The Society does not receive any tax support and runs solely on donations.

Yes, Virginia, miracles happen

Eastbound on Broadway in Lemon Grove, Virginia Jasperson, a young mother, felt suddenly faint and turned onto Buena Vista, to pull her Camaro to the side of the street.

Her two children, Natasha, 4, and Anthony, 6 months, were secured in the front seat beside her, when Jasperson a few moments later, drove on...and up the anchor guide of a utility post.

"I felt okay, and set the car in motion, and I must've blacked out. The next thing I knew, the car was like this (indicating a nose-up, canted position, balanced on the anchor guide, fenders against a fence on her right).

"I grabbed for the kids, who were screaming, and the car jolted onto its side," Jasperson said. No one was injured. "We were very lucky, weren't we?"

Jasperson had recently been discharged from a local hospital where she had undergone surgery, but was taking no post-operative medication, she said.

Distraught and tearful, she smiled and said, "That's two warnings in less than a month. I'm going back to my church."

How to put a car thief out of business Sheriffs arrest suspects

Car thieves operate illegal chop shops in ordinary neighborhoods-relying on apathy, ignorance and fear to go unreported to law enforcement.

Chop shops are illegal activities involving dismantling of vehicles, altering or replacing of vehicle identification numbers, switching parts of vehicles and purchasing of stolen vehicles, and selling vehicles.

Law enforcement should be notified if residents of a home appear to be operating a car repair business in the neighborhood. Unusual amount of vehicle traffic, especially at night, is suspicious.

Dismantling and painting of vehicles, especially at night, is a tipoff to illegal activity. A junkyard appearance with several cars on the property, operative or inoperative, may indicate an illegal chop shop as well.

Noting license plate numbers of vehicles visiting the residence is extremely helpful for vehicle theft investigators.

Vehicle theft impacts all citizens by raising the costs of insurance and the costs of law enforcement and the courts. Citizens may call 565-5200 to report suspicious activity, or the local vehicle theft investigator, Bill Walkup. Anonymous information can be given through CrimeStoppers at 235-TIPS. A citizen can remain anonymous and earn a reward if the tip solves a crime.

Arturo Ortiz, 28, was arrested Wednesday, March 8, for burglary. Ortiz entered the Radio Shack store on Sweetwater Road and asked to be shown a police scanner, and then stole it when the clerk's attention was diverted, according to a report by Sheriff's Deputy Rich Bolter.

The suspect was pursued by the clerk, on foot, through the parking lot, where he was halted and taken into custody by Deputy Bolter.

Sheriff's Deputy Van Joslyn arrested a pair of drunken drivers in two separate incidents Saturday, March 4.

Warren Lee Hawes, 25, of National City, and James Stephen Hunter, 24, of El Cajon, were both stopped and taken into custody in the 7900 and 8100 blocks of Lemon Grove Way in Lemon Grove.

It's the law

by LaMar B. Brown, Attorney at Law

Question: What is Small Claims Court and when can I use it?

Answer: Small Claims Court is a court where you can explain your side of a controversy to a judge who will then decide the case, as long as the amount in dispute is under $2,000.

An example of what happens in Small Claims Court is "The People's Court" with Judge Wapner seen on your local television station in the evenings. Both sides of the controversy or dispute appear before a judge who is authorized to decide the matter. Each side presents its evidence and description of the dispute and the judge makes the decision. Attorneys are generally not allowed to represent either party at the proceeding. It is strictly you and the person with whom you have the dispute.

Every Municipal Court in San Diego has a Small Claims Division. If you decide that you need the assistance of the court in a matter, go to the Small Claims office of the court and ask for the forms necessary to file the claim. These forms are free. You can also write for your forms, including a self-addressed, stamped envelope and the court will mail you the forms. The forms will explain the procedures and the steps you must take in filing the action.

If you have questions concerning the forms, the clerks in the Small Claims Division will be willing to assist you in filling out the forms. Remember, the clerks are not attorneys and cannot advise you on legal questions you may have concerning your action. If you do have legal questions you may wish to call the COUNTY SMALL CLAIMS ADVISOR at (619) 237-2700.

After you have filled out all of the forms, take them to the Small Claims Division office and file your papers with the court. The filing fee is $6.00. If evidence is offered of your inability to afford the fee, there are procedures available to have the court waive the filing fee.

After the papers have been filed, the court clerk will assign you a date, at least thirty days later, which will be the date of your hearing.

Once your papers have been filed and you have been assigned a date for your hearing, it is necessary to "serve" the complaint to the defendant. "Service" is accomplished by having the Small Claims Court do a Certified mail service on the defendant which cost $3.00 for each defendant. Another option would be to have the Marshall's office serve the claim personally, which is $20.00 for each defendant.

On the date of the hearing, make sure that you and your witnesses appear at the hearing on time. Also, make sure that you bring with you all of the documents you want to present as evidence in an acceptable form; any witnesses to support your side of the story; and any other evidence which will support your side of the case. If for some reason a witness cannot appear in court, a sworn or notarized statement may be accepted by the court as that person's testimony.

Make sure that when you appear in court you listen very carefully to the Judge's questions. Remember that the Judge is asking questions in order to get answers which he needs in order to reach a decision which he believes is appropriate.

If you do receive a judgement in your favor, it will be necessary for you to collect this money from the defendant, provided he has the ability to pay.

Traffic violations reported

A new month; new figures. The more it changes; the more it seems the same.

Traffic figures of violators tend to move around a bit, but they always come out just a few points from where they were the same time each month.

The California Highway Patrol listed 263 speeders during the first 10 days of March, and they transported to the jail 127 DUI drivers.

Unbuckled seat belts accounted for 262 citations and 11 motorists failed to have toddlers in safety seats. 430 were not able to show evidence of insurance coverage.

"The figures are fairly stable," opined Captain Don Watkins, commander of the east half of the County of San Diego.

In Lemon Grove, the month-to-date figures also seemed similar to the month earlier.

With the figures finally toted up, His Magnificence, the imperial of the street and byways traffic of the City of Lemon Grove, Sheriff's Sergeant Deputy, Rusty Burkett, rushed in with these figures: 10 DUI's; 154 speeders; 20 seat belt violations; and 67 drivers without evidence of auto insurance.

Commentary

by Max Goodwin

Worry about the failure of the Social Security System has faded temporarily into a subordinate position. Depending on age and circumstance, it has been subordinated by other worries--and there are plenty of them to go around.

Of immediate concern are bombings which may or may not be at the hands of terrorists.

There is plenty to worry about with assault weapons which are made available to anyone with money to pay for them.

Drugs, a lethal activity now spread to the sub-teen level appear to be a problem that has no apparent solution.

So what's doing with Social Security?

Dorcas R. Hardy, Commissioner of Social Security, reported this month that income to the Social Security trust funds will exceed outgoing funds by about $45 billion this year.

"This year, 39 billion beneficiaries will receive Social Security payments financed by 132 million workers, their employers, and the self-employed."

"Social Security is not a savings or a checking account--it is a pipeline. Revenues collected by today's workers flow into one end of the pipe, and payments to today's beneficiaries out the other end. Today's workers will not face a bankrupt program tomorrow," Hardy stated.

He offered the following projections:

1990: $310 billion income; 252 billion outgo; reserves $212 billion

2000: $632 billion income; 447 billion outgo; reserves $1.4 trillion

2010: $1.2 trillion income; 826 billion outgo; reserves $4.5 trillion

It's all very assuring. We think the failing of our Social Security System is not to be worried about.

Those who need reassurance may call the Social Security toll-free number, 1-800-234-SSA.

However, there is another side to that coin. The cost of additional health coverage is going to rise.

James Roosevelt, chairman of the nation's second largest senior organization, has warned that the controversial Medicare catastrophic tax is going to hit nearly 50% of all seniors in 1989.

Roosevelt, founder and president of the National Committee to Preserve Social Security and Medicare, said that holders of the catastrophic tax coverage get hit with a $22.50 surcharge for every $150 tax liability. Yet, most of the seniors paying the surtax will end up paying more out-of-pocket for Medicare-covered services than they did before, he says.

By 1993, the catastrophic coverage will carry a heavier burden; $42 for every $150 in tax liability, commented Roosevelt.

"The Medicare Catastrophic Coverage Act will mean very little in the way of improved health care coverage for most seniors. 62% of all Medicare enrollees already had medigap insurance coverage," Roosevelt said. "Another 10% receive assistance from Medicaid and are therefore already protected against out-of-pocket costs."

"That means only 28% of Medicare beneficiaries--those who cannot receive medigap coverage--cannot qualify for such insurance--or choose not to purchase it, stand to really gain from the catastrophic law," Roosevelt added.

James Roosevelt may be reached at National Committee to Preserve Social Security and Medicare, 2000 K Street, N.W. Suite 800, Washington, D.C. 20006.

Winking At Insurance Fraud

By Harvey Levine

President, California Trial Lawyers Association

There's an almost-overwhelming temptation nowadays to address large and complex issues by mouthing a few clichés, trotting out a couple of isolated examples and offering a simplistic solution.

In public relations, advertising and journalism circles, this approach is called "hype." Whatever it's called, it's no way to handle California's pressing social, economic and political problems.

A case in point is the high cost of insurance. Prod an insurance executive only slightly these days, and he'll holler that one of the main reasons for skyrocketing insurance rates is fraud.

Then he'll paint a picture for you: one car bumps into another on a crowded L.A. street. The driver of the bumped car, sensing lifetime financial security, claims whiplash. An opportunistic lawyer directs him to a shady doctor and the trio conspire to milk some poor Mom-and-Pop insurance company, struggling to make ends meet, out of a bundle of cash.

The insurance company, unable to prove the "victim" isn't really injured, has no choice but to agree to a large settlement. Then, having previously given all its profits to charity, the insurance company is forced to pass the costs of the settlement on to its other customers.

A grim scenario, but the portrait falls apart under closer examination. First let us consider the source. Insurance companies are in a cost-plus industry. They figure out their costs, add on a healthy percentage for a profit margin, then set their rates. The higher the costs, the more their profit percentage brings in.

Thus insurance companies complaining about fraud driving up their costs is like defense contractors complaining about all those extras the military wants to add on the B-1 bomber.

Second, consider the real cause of the problem. The insurance industry itself is among the most culpable when it comes to insurance fraud problems. The reasons are simple--Insurers have made it clear that they will almost always settle a claim, albeit at a snail's pace, rather than contest it or create the mechanism necessary to investigate and prosecute suspected fraud cases.

The reason for that is equally simple. Insurers don't take the loss out of their profits; they simply jack up the rates they charge consumers.

The philosophy may make some sort of twisted, short-term business logic, but in the long-term it is ruinous to both company and customer. By agreeing to accept fraud as a cost of doing business, insurers are dooming themselves and their policyholders to a future of high rates and subsidized crime.

Those who think that this is misstating the insurance industry's real position on fraud need look no further than last year's elections for corroboration.

The industry spent close to $70 million endeavoring, unsuccessfully, to convince voters that a "no-fault" insurance system was the answer to high rates. Nothing was said then about insurance fraud. The industry proposed nothing to fight it. Indeed, insurers went to great lengths to fight Proposition 100, supported by consumer groups, the California Trial Lawyers Association and others, that would have mandated the collection of a surcharge, similar to a 1987 legislative proposal.

Proposition 100 would have created a fund for aggressive investigation and prosecution of auto insurance fraud at the local level, through an ongoing 10 cents per policy surcharge. The industry opposed it, even though the anti-fraud measure wouldn't have cost them a penny out of their own profits.

Even more alarming is the industry's lack of response to a bill passed last year by the Legislature. The bill required insurers to collect 30 cents from every policy written in California and make it available to the Department of Insurance to investigate and prosecute insurance fraud at the state and local levels. The commissioner has yet to collect a penny of the $3 million due from the surcharge.

In the wake of voter rejection of no-fault and approval of greater insurance industry regulation under Proposition 103, it makes economic and political sense for the industry to now join with the legal profession and consumer groups to combat insurance fraud.

Given the industry's previous track record, however, one shouldn't hold one's breath waiting for that to happen.

Lawyers realize that allowing fraudulent claims to go through our legal system makes a mockery of that system, and that codding con artists while using the insurance fraud issue as a political tool serves no one's interest.

Some insurance fraud exists, human nature being what it is, and as a practical matter can never be entirely stamped out. But accepting and acquiescing to it as a business-as-usual condition is intolerable. It can and should be stopped.

From Where I Sit

by Frank Andrews

Did you know that the word "Dog" spelled backwards is "God?" I do believe that the Lord created the faithful, humble, loving creatures just for boys and every boy should have the right to grow up with a dog.

I was an only child and raised in my father's illegal liquor business which meant a very restricted home life. When I was about 5 years old, my dad brought home a Brindle-Bull puppy for me. This little pup, who I named Sockie after a popular radio character of the time, was to be just like a brother to me for many years to come.

Because of my dad's illegal business I could never have my young friends over to our house to play. So when things got a little rough at home, Sockie and I would go fishing or hunting together. He was so smart that I could teach him to do most anything but talk.

Sockie was with me where ever I went; he would even come to school and wait for me so we would walk home together. When I started high school and had to take the bus, he would always be waiting for me at the bus stop, regardless of the Minnesota weather.

I don't really know how I could have grown up without the love and affection of this most wonderful pal. He remained with me even after I had married; he grew to love my wife, so the three of us got along famously for his last couple of years.

He was getting older and more feeble with each day. That dreaded day finally came when he just could not get up anymore. Even if I lifted him, he would fall right over again. After much debating and praying, we decided that he had to be put out of his misery. On my way to work on that awful day, I dropped him off at the Vet's.

History is repeating as I now have to make the same dreadful decision again for my faithful old Sheltie, Lady, who has been by my side for over 15 years. She is racked by the pain of arthritis, and in sympathy for her, I will soon have to take her to the good Dr. Burns for her disposal. That day will be another 'Black Day' in my life.

'Thank you Lord' for the faithful, loving companionship of Sockie in my dawning years, and Lady in my twilight years.

Better Business Bureau offers financial tips

As the April 1989 tax filing deadline fast approaches, many taxpayers and investors may be asking:

--WHO can I turn to for help in preparing my taxes and planning my finances for the future?

--WHAT effect will the tax provisions have on my charitable contribution deductions, mutual fund, IRA, and similar investments?

--WHERE can I go for sound economic advice?

Recognizing that many consumers will be seeking the assistance of qualified tax preparers and reputable financial planners to answer their questions and solve their problems, the Better Business Bureau has released the following booklets as part of its Consumer Information Series: "Tips on Tax Preparers" outlines the difference between various types of tax preparers, including national tax services, enrolled agents, certified and licensed public accountants, and tax attorneys.

Additionally, "Tips on Tax Preparers" explains what the preparer's obligations are in filing an income tax return, as well as his or her responsibilities in the event of an IRS audit.

"Tips on Tax Deductions for Charitable Contributions" gives a brief guide to determining the tax-exempt status of non-profit organizations as well as the tax deductibility of individual and corporate gifts.

"Tips on Financial Planners" discusses the different types of planners (fee-only, commission, fee/commission) and the possible advantages of working with each type. The booklet provides a financial planner, including a list of questions the consumer should ask. It also contains a special section on the "red flags" of fraud and abuse. For example, consumers should:

--Determine if a "planner" has a criminal record or a history of securities-related complaints;

--Be on guard for possible Ponzi schemes;

Avoid financial planners who give you few or no alternatives in your investment plan; and

--Be cautious of financial planners without a staff.

"Tips on Financial Planners" lists the various kinds of financial planners and the certification and accreditation requirements for the categories, including CFP (Certified Financial Planner); ChFC (Chartered Financial Consultant); and MSFS (Master of Science in Financial Services).

The Better Business Bureau's Consumer Information Series offers helpful tips on more than 90 topics of consumer and business interest. For a copy of these publications, send 25¢ for each booklet and a self-addressed, stamped business size envelope to the Better Business Bureau of San Diego, 525 "B" Street, Suite 301, San Diego, CA 92101.

Bates succeeds Lasko as bishop

A veteran scout leader and elementary school teacher was named Sunday as bishop of the Lemon Grove 2nd Ward (congregation) of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints (Mormon).

The new bishop, Orval D. Bates, succeeds Thomas D. Lasko, Lemon Grove businessman, who has headed the Second Ward since 1984.

Named as counselors to Bishop Bates were Robert Wilestead and John Osborn, both of Lemon Grove.

Officiating at the special conference at the Blossom Lane Chapel was Craig Bramwell, president of the Sweetwater San Diego Stake. "We're grateful for the dedicated service and leadership provided by Bishop Lasko and his counselors, Marc Hunter and Robert Sims," els is provided by lay leaders who are selected by church authorities and approved by members of the congregation.

Bramwell said.

"Bishops and their counselors serve without pay," Pres. Bramwell explained to the 500 ward members and visitors present. "Yet, the callings require considerable time and a selfless dedication to the work of God."

The Lemon Grove 1st Ward, plus the Lemon Grove 2nd Ward, and the two Spring Valley Wards, serve the needs of the some 2,000 members of the church residing in the Lemon Grove-Spring Valley area.

These four wards, coupled with three wards in the Bonita-National City area, make up the Sweetwater Stake.

Some 60,000 members in 18 stakes reside in the greater San Diego area.

Pinewood Derby

More than 40 excited young fellows, and their families, revelled in a day of derby racing Saturday, at the Lemon Grove Recreation Dept.

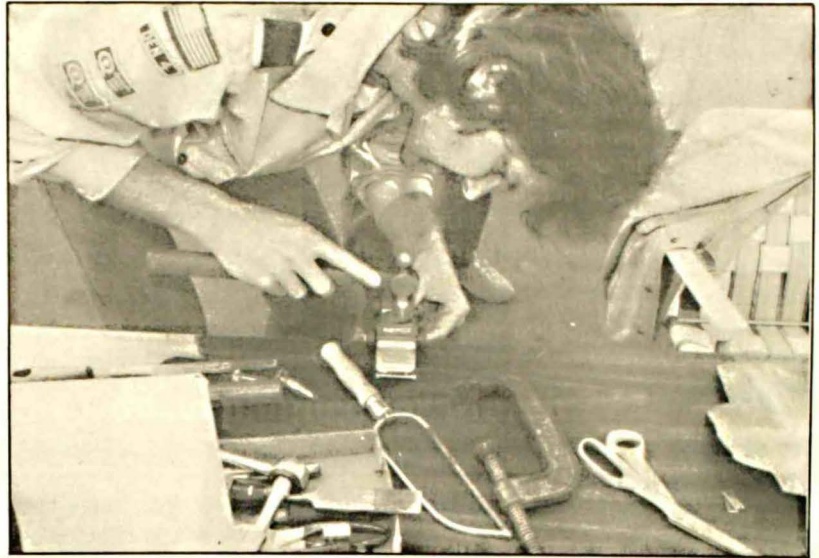

Having worked diligently on their customized editions from a regulation Pinewood Derby kit, and dreaming of the big day, each scout wildly cheered his racer to the finish lane.

The boys raced a minimum of three heats in this year's event, which is held annually. Many families made a day of it, replete with picnic baskets.

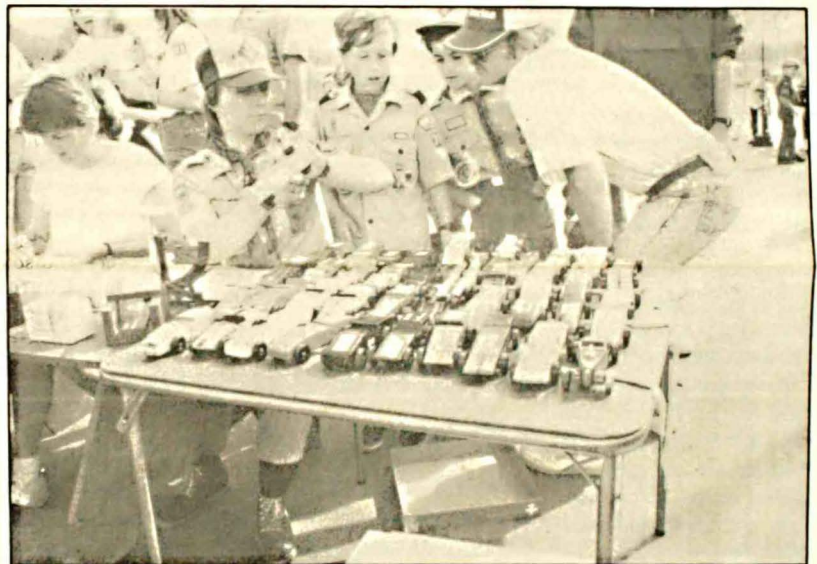

Numerous trophies are given and racers not successful in the speed contests still had an opportunity to win for best paint job, best looking, most exciting and several other categories.

They're off! And an electronic score lights up as each pinewood racer hits the finish line.

Ernie Beck, leader of cub scout den 4 assisted in adding weights to the racers which lacked ounces on the weigh-in scale.

More than 40 creative speedsters were built, and raced, from identical scout regulation derby kits.

Champions of the 1989 Pinewood Derby overall speed competitions are; Justin Hayes (left) for second place, first place winner Billy Jaros (center), and Ryan Beck (right) who took third place.

Spring Valley Elementary students visited by puppet troupe

Spring Valley Elementary students were visited Thursday by "The Kids on the Block," a special troupe of puppets which explores the limitations of blindness, diabetes, and the concerns of a child who suffers physical abuse.

The program focuses on children's differences, but with an emphasis on their similarities.

Presented by members of the Junior League of San Diego in cooperation with the Easter Seal and Epilepsy Societies, the production encourages students to ask questions of the puppets which they may hesitate to ask of a real person who is disabled, and the answers are candid and informational.

Puppeteers Darla Follett, Denise Peik, Mary Susskind and Lucy Hokanson fielded a variety of queries from the students, but received more hand-waving requests than the 45-minute presentation would permit.

Children were encouraged to write their questions to the puppets, in care of their school principal, and the "puppets" will respond.

Desert field trip to be led by experts

Pitchin', Cookin', and Spittin' Hullabaloo set

It's the 12th annual Calico Pitchin', Cookin', and Spittin' Hullabaloo. Organized by residents of Calico and San Bernardino County regional parks department, the three day event runs March 17 through 19 to celebrate Calico's naming in April, 1881.

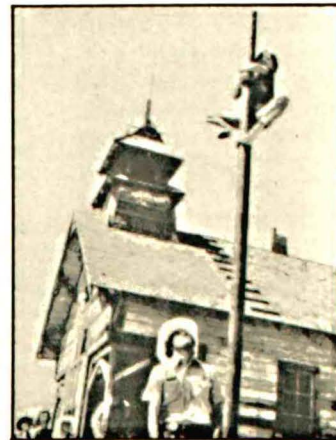

Hullabaloo events beginning Friday and running through Sunday include several 19th century mining camp activities including flap-jack racing, stew cooking, greased pole climbing, arm wrestling, and tobacco spitting.

Calico got its name from the local rock formations: swirls of red, green, orange and yellow--like Calico cloth. A restored mining town dating to the 1880's, the historic site now houses more than 23 shops and food parlours.

Mine tours and rides on a narrow gauge offer a look into Calico's rich and colorful past, and a campground provides sites within a short walk from town for a nightly fee of $8/unit.

About 11,000 visitors are expected for this year's Hullabaloo. Daily admission is $4 for adults and $2 for juniors. Lodging is available in nearby Barstow by calling the Chamber of Commerce at (619) 256-8617.

Calico is located 10 miles north of Barstow, CA at Ghost Town Road and I-15. Additional information is also available by calling Calico at (619) 254-2122.

Regional conference for women planned for March 27

"The San Diego Regional Conference for Women should sell out well in advance of the event," said California State Board of Equalization Member, Ernie Dronenburg. "I would advise everyone interested in attending to sign up as soon as possible." Invitations for the one-day event to be held on March 27 at the Town & Country Hotel have been mailed.

The conference, co-sponsored by Dronenburg and Home Federal Savings and Loan Association, will feature more than 100 expert speakers and 75 different seminar topics pertinent to today's woman active in business, the community or the home.

The luncheon will feature as its keynote speaker, Marlo Thomas, actress, producer, social activist and lecturer. Ms. Thomas, who has won four Emmys, seven Emmy nominations, a Golden Globe Award, and the George Foster Peabody Award, during her widely varied career, has entitled her speech "From That Girl to This Woman."

Timing is right for Lemon Grove Plaza

Construction progressing on schedule, says developer

The timing is right, the spirit of cooperation is high, and it's those two elements which are instrumental in the successful development of Lemon Grove Plaza, according to Sam Marasco, president of LandGrant Development.

"Timing was everything for LandGrant, in that the Redevelopment Agency was established and is able to provide assistance; the citizenry supported the concept; and as a result there was the political will to allow such a massive project," Marasco said.

Located between Highway 94 and Broadway, west of Massachusetts Avenue, the 15-acre, $24 million community shopping center is expected to be completed this summer. The one-and two-story shops are 78 percent leased, Marasco said, and lease negotiations continue on the few remaining vacancies.

The free-standing satellite pads, located along the project's parking perimeter, have been leased by Great American First Savings Bank, Godfather's Pizza, Carl's Jr., Kentucky Fried Chicken, and Corral Ford (at its existing location on Massachusetts).

A "Superstore"—either Alpha Beta or Lucky, owned by Alpha Beta (depending on future courtroom mandates)—will provide the center's "anchor." Other major occupants include House of Fabrics and Dress to the Nines, a retail chain new to the San Diego area, which offers price-sensitive, contemporary clothing for men and women, and features designer-label fashions.

Also included in the line-up is Video Discount, Bible Bookstore, Plaza Cleaners, Mail Boxes, Etc., and Picway Shoes, as well as a pair of yet-to-be-named small, full-service restaurants. Marasco said that the plaza's average rent is $1.30 per square foot; the average shop size is 1,200 square feet; and the average lease term is for five years.

There were challenges, successfully met, after the initial phase of land acquisition in 1986, said Sharon Hibbert, LandGrant's corporate marketing director. Hibbert was charged with orchestrating the relocation of more than 200 tenants who lived in the two trailer parks located on the project site at the time of the land purchase.

"The relocation of so many required a great deal of focus and sensitivity. Many folks had resided in the parks 20 or 30 years or more; many not in the best of health; some very frail. All of them had economic problems," Hibbert said.

"It was a challenge to match each individual's needs to another location where they could live, and be happy. When that phase of the project was completed, I had a real sense of accomplishment. It was a win-win situation, and I think the majority [of those who were relocated] felt that way, too."

LandGrant spent $1 million and 18 months in relocating the tenants.

The relocation costs incurred by LandGrant were a factor in the Lemon Grove Redevelopment Agency's agreement to provide financial assistance. Often, the efforts and costs of tenant relocation is borne entirely by a community's redevelopment agency. The agency may also assist with the costs of various public improvements, which can include offset drainage, traffic signals or other street improvements, according to Jack Shelver, City Manager of Lemon Grove.

The agency will invest a total of $700,000 plus interest, though no exchange of cash will actually take place. The agency will provide a "letter of credit" upon which strength LandGrant will secure a bank loan. The agency will then repay the loan—approximately $150,000 per year for the next seven years. (The loan may be prepaid if the agency desires to do so, Shelver explained).

In return for this investment, the agency expects to receive about $152,000 annually in tax increment revenue, and the City of Lemon Grove may receive an additional $260,000 in sales tax revenue, based on staff projections, said Shelver.

Totalling more than $400,000 annually, these funds could not be generated by permitting the site to remain undeveloped or under-developed.

"LandGrant could not have done this project but for redevelopment, and the assistance that redevelopment permits," emphasized Marasco.

"Not only the financial assistance, but the redevelopment attitude—the desire—the commitment to doing something positive," he continued.

"The development process is so complicated, so lengthy, so involved, that the only thing that allows it to happen is a commitment to vision and enough people saying 'Yes, we want this. We want to resolve any problems that arise. We will work with you.'"

Marasco applauded the city's planning director and staff, for the cooperation and encouragement it continues to provide.

"I think the consistency of mind between the city's staff, the administration and its political leaders is very cohesive—very coherent—which made LandGrant's job that much easier," Marasco stated.

He addressed the plaza development's magnetism for customers, which concerns existing merchants. He said he expects the center to entice more shoppers, from outside the city's limits, than ever have shopped in Lemon Grove.

"They will filter throughout the community. People love to comparison shop, and to spread their dollars around, so as long as consumers are offered everything they want to purchase in one general area, they will frequent the various stores, both new and existing, for desired items and value," Marasco said, adding that area residents, who work outside of the area and shop where they work, may also be more inclined to "shop nearer home."

Sharon Hibbert's responsibilities for tenant relocation have been completed. She has moved on to another of LandGrant's many developments and has been succeeded by Charles Davis, the plaza's project manager.

Davis "sits in the eye of the storm" and coordinates all of the facets of the project, even through the Grand Opening celebrations, Marasco said.

"Charles has a tough job. He's adept at holding the reins, and all of the elements overlap at some point. He will pull together the efforts of Chris Smith and Sean McNulty, who handle the project marketing and leasing, and those of Nancy Sundeen, our public relations representative of Manning and Associates."

Davis, Marasco said, is the one with all the work and little glory—the man his firm looks to when something goes wrong or is delayed.

"He'll have it all pulled together. He's proud of the project. I'm proud of it, and Lemon Grove will be proud of it."

"Just you wait and see!"

Lemon Grove Plaza, expected to be completed this summer, will be surfaced in cream stucco and accented in earthtones and terra cotta. It will feature landscaped seating areas, wooden benches and extended patios.

A Fresh Look

New facades in Lemon Grove's central business district are surfacing rapidly.

The latest to be completed are Marianne's Beauty Supply & Gifts, Hoss Refrigeration, and Marders Stationers on the south side of Broadway, between Grove Street and Lemon Grove Avenue.

The rehabilitation of facades and signs is financed, wholly or in part, through grants provided by the community Redevelopment Agency, a function of the city council, city administrators and staff.

Additional commercial facades are in various stages of planning and design.

Toyota official sponsor of upcoming LPGA event

As golfers are well aware a hole-in-one is not par for the course. But April 3-9, players at the Red Robin Kyocera Inamori Classic will undoubtedly hope for better odds at the twelfth and eighteenth holes. At these greens a hole-in-one will earn a lucky pro or amateur a 1989 Toyota Camry. (Toyota is the official car of the LPGA event).

Jim Williams, president of the San Diego County Toyota Dealers Advertising Association, a network of nine dealerships which is sponsoring the tournament said, "Nothing would please us more than having a participant win a new Toyota."

Besides offering three Toyotas in hole-in-one competition, the Association will provide a fleet of 50 vehicles to chauffeur LPGA players and other VIP's during the Classic. In addition, San Diego County Toyota dealers will offer two-for-one coupons toward the purchase of tournament tickets. Coupons are available at Toyota's nine dealerships throughout the County including Lee White Toyota of Lemon Grove.

Caliente handicap offers $10,000 as guaranteed first prize money

Caliente Race Track will hold an international handicapping contest April 1-2 with $10,000 guaranteed to the winner, track owner Jorge Hank Rhon announced today.

Other awards, also guaranteed, will be $1,500 for second place, $750 for third, and $250 for fourth, Hank said.

The contest will be held in the new race book on the second level of the track adjacent to the Turf Club at the head of the escalator. The entry fee is $100.

"Everyone will start with a mythical $1,000 and bet the races at Santa Anita on those two days," Hank said. "This contest is creating a lot of excitement and will be operated by the same company that conducts the Penn National World Series of Handicapping. Regular horse players know that means a first-class operation."

The Santa Anita races will be seen live on television monitors and screens at the race book.

Hank said entries will be limited to the first 125 men and women. Checks will be returned to anyone entering after that.

Entries are being accepted now, Hank said.

"You have to bet at least $2 on each race," he said. "The person with the largest bankroll at the end is the winner. On the other hand, anyone losing the entire bankroll is out."

Exotic bets, such as the daily double, will not be permitted, Hank said. Payoffs will be computed at track odds.

For entry blanks and rules phone 1-800-356-4699.

Toyota to sponsor Padres television games

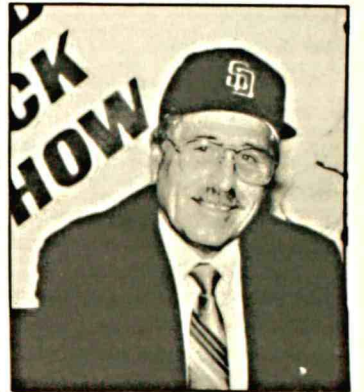

The Broadcast Department of the San Diego Padres announced that the San Diego County Toyota Dealers purchased an exclusive automobile sponsorship for their 1989 television broadcasts.

The sponsorship package, worth over $1.5 million, represents the largest single automotive sponsorship in the team's history, according to the Padres' Executive Vice President, Dick Freeman. The package also includes radio and stadium scoreboard advertising.

"Toyota and the Padres are a natural team. Both are strong organizations with an established relationship," Freeman said, referring to Toyota's past two years of Padre sponsorship on radio.

In addition, Padres manager Jack McKeon has signed a separate one-year agreement with Toyota to act as the Association's spokesman.

McKeon will appear in Toyota television and radio commercials on San Diego stations.

Sports Commentary

by John E. Wirges

There is a flaw in the Padre package. Nothing serious, thank God. The Padres probably don't know what's happening. The miscue really isn't a Padre doing even though it makes them look stupid.

Radio advertising for station KFMB invites Padre fans to tune in for spring training games at "12 NOON."

You'd think a commercial enterprise like KFMB would employ copy writers that have some command of the English language. Any junior high student writing "12 noon" on a class paper would lose points for the redundancy. Noon comes at no other time.

Using the term "12 noon" would be cause for a failure in high school and a college term paper using "12 noon" would probably cost the student a failing grade for the entire course.

It's understandable that a radio station would make such an error. People generally go into radio because they don't spell well enough to write. All radio (and television) announcers have to do is sound out the words even if they don't understand them.

As it says up there at the top, it's no big thing. Poor language skills are part of radio. Fortunately, sloppy work habits of radio do not influence the professional approach Jack McKeon takes in the pursuit of his tasks.

McKeon is the life's blood of the San Diego Padres. It's almost as if he willed them into existence. As their former general manager, McKeon wheeled and dealt and scouted and judged and traded and signed free agents to build what is very likely the most promising team in the National League. He produced a contender of which any general manager would be proud.

Then McKeon shifts cloths, much like Clark Kent, and takes command of his creation on the field as they head off in a charge for the National League pennant.

McKeon, the GM, still has a little action going on the side that could produce yet another power hitter for McKeon, the manager.

But with or without an Atlanta trade, McKeon, the manager is wearing pretty soft shoes.

He has drum tight defense up the middle, from (All Stars-to be) catcher Benito Santiago and second baseman Roberto Alomar to rifle armed shortstop Gary Templeton, then out to three-time league batting champ, center fielder Tony Gwynn.

Jack Clark brings power and a will to excel to first base and the clean up spot. Clark loves to talk "hitting" and his colleagues are delighted to listen.

McKeon the magician, doesn't let anything get past him. One problem the Padres face is finding a suitable backup for Templeton. Newcomer Gary Green has the defensive skills, but he lacks the bat. He has trouble hitting his hat size.

Where does McKeon, the master psychologist, assign locker space to the light hitting Green? Would you believe he dresses right next to Jack Clark, the hitting genius, who loves to share his knowledge of the art of swinging.

McKeon misses nothing. He is a master at his craft. He got the Padres off and winning in the pre-season. He has just about everybody, even unskilled radio copy writers, anxiously awaiting the April 3 Padre opening game with San Francisco. 'Til then, we can listen to the exhibition games. They're on KFMB at noon.
